

Piece of copper used to separate two nets.
During development it is possible to separate the two nets by cutting the middle part and connecting the two nets by soldering.